1. Summary

Item	Current state
Role	Comparison page aimed at people searching "crab island pontoon rental", the biggest commercial alternative to your product. Readers are about to spend money, so it can win bookings from rental shoppers.
SEO title	Tiki Boat or Pontoon Rental for Crab Island? Compared (53 characters)
Meta description	150 characters, ends with "from $900".
Body copy	About 1,800 words. Fair, specific, with three realistic scenarios. No empty headings.
Main problem	The cost logic is wrong in four places (section 2).
Internal links	2 body links (charter link broken, /about/ fine).
New facts here	"Family owned and run by Destin locals"; shelling trips; waterfront bar stops. Use these on the About and Charter pages.

2. Critical fixes: the cost argument

Both a pontoon rental and a private charter are priced per boat. Splitting either one across more people lowers the per-person cost by the same proportion. Group size alone never flips which is cheaper. What flips it is capacity: once a group outgrows one pontoon (10 to 14 people, per this page), it needs two rentals, two drivers and two fuel bills, while one tiki boat still fits 18.

#	Current text	Problem and fix
1	P1 "Cost crossover sits around 8 to 10 guests." (Key Takeaways and Per-Person Math)	A half-day pontoon at $300 to $500 plus fuel stays cheaper than a $900 charter at 8, 10 or 12 people. The real crossover is when the group needs a second pontoon, around 12 to 15 people. Rewrite as in section 5.
2	P1 "Groups over eight often find the private charter competitive per person." (Quick answer)	Same issue. Replace with the capacity argument.

3	P1 "For groups over eight, usually yes... for roughly the same per-person cost." (FAQ)	Not true for the same group size. Say the charter costs more, and list what the difference buys (captain, fuel, bathroom, shade, no driver).
4	P1 "A $900 charter split across 18 guests works out to about $50 each" and "base rate covering up to 8 guests and a per-guest add-on above that"	The same contradiction as the Cost page. Both sentences are on this page. Fix once the pricing is confirmed.
5	P2 "Twelve people exceed most rental pontoons" (Scenario 2)	Contradicts "most rental pontoons hold 10 to 14". Change to "Twelve people fill or exceed most rental pontoons".
6	P2 "born after January 1, 1988" (3 places)	Florida's rule is "born on or after January 1, 1988", for boats of 10 horsepower or more. Link to FWC.

Being honest that the pontoon is cheaper for small groups is what makes this page persuasive. The current draft is honest in its scenarios but then overstates the math. Fixing the math keeps that credibility.

5. Content rewrites (paste-ready)

Quick answer (revised)

> A pontoon rental costs less and puts you at the wheel: typically $300 to $500 for a half day or $500 to $800 for a full day in Destin, plus fuel. Anyone driving who was born on or after January 1, 1988 needs a Florida boater safety card. A captained tiki boat costs more and removes the driving, docking, anchoring and fuel. It also holds more people. Our 32-foot tiki boat seats 18, while most rental pontoons hold 10 to 14. For small groups the pontoon is usually cheaper. Once your group would need two pontoons, one tiki boat often costs about the same.

H2: Cost Comparison by Group Size (replaces "Running the Per-Person Math")

Group	Pontoon rental (half day)	Private tiki charter (4 hours)	Cheaper option
4 to 10 people	One pontoon, about $300 to $500 + fuel	From $800/$900 (confirm)	Pontoon
11 to 14 people	One large pontoon if available, or two	Confirm, incl. any per-guest add-on	Depends on pontoon size
15 to 18 people	Two pontoons, two drivers, about $600 to $1,000 + fuel	Confirm, incl. any per-guest add-on	Often the charter

> Both options are priced per boat, so adding people lowers the per-person cost on either one. The tiki boat pulls ahead when your group no longer fits on a single pontoon. Then you're paying for two rentals, two tanks of fuel and two people who don't get to swim. For prices on every option, see how much it costs to go to Crab Island.

Revised FAQ: Is a tiki boat worth it compared to a pontoon rental?

> It costs more for the same group, so it depends on what you value. The extra buys a licensed captain, fuel, a bathroom, full shade, room for 18 and a day where nobody in your group has to drive. For four adults with an experienced boater, a pontoon is the better deal. For a big group, a celebration, or a trip with kids and grandparents, most people find the charter worth it.

New FAQ

> Can I rent a pontoon in Destin without a boating license? Florida doesn't issue a "boating license," but anyone born on or after January 1, 1988 needs a boater safety education card to operate a boat with 10 horsepower or more. Rental companies will ask for it. On a captained charter, no card is needed. FWC boating education.
