2. Critical fixes

#	Issue	Fix
1	P1 Unlinked reference	"check out our related blog: High Tide vs. Low Tide at Crab Island: What You Need to Know" is plain text. Link it to /high-tide-vs-low-tide-at-crab-island/ (and match the real title: "What's the Difference?").
2	P1 US Harbors link goes to the home page	Point it to the Destin station page used in the tide post: usharbors.com/harbor/florida/destin-choctawhatchee-bay-east-pass-fl/tides/.
3	P1 Meta description	Too long and garbled. Replace (section 3).
4	P2 Onboard toys again	Lists "paddleboards, an inflatable mat... and other water toys". Match the confirmed list from the What to Bring changelog (one paddle board or several?).
5	P2 Missing period	"...who understands the local waterways" has no period.

5. Content rewrites (paste-ready)

Quick answer (new, under H1)

> Short answer: September and October are two of the best months for Crab Island. The water is still warm, crowds drop sharply after Labor Day, especially on weekdays, and the summer heat eases. The tradeoff is that it's still hurricane season, so keep an eye on the forecast.

H2: Crab Island in Fall at a Glance (new)

Month	Water	Crowds	Notes
September	Warm (confirm, NOAA)	Light on weekdays after Labor Day	Still feels like summer; peak of hurricane season
October	Cooling (confirm)	Light, busier on fall break and event weekends	Milder afternoons; fall events in town
November	Cool (confirm)	Very light	Better for sunset cruises than long swims

Fill water temperatures from NOAA's coastal water temperature data, and use the same figures as the Best Time guide.

H2: 4. Fall Events in Destin (new)

> (Add 2 or 3 real fall events with confirmed 2026 dates, for example the Destin Fishing Rodeo in October and the Destin Seafood Festival. Link to the official event pages.) Event weekends fill hotels and the harbor, so book your charter early if you're in town for one.

Event names and dates must be confirmed before publishing. Event content is time-sensitive, so update it each year.

H2: 6. Check the Tides and the Tropics (revised)

> Fall is still Atlantic hurricane season, which runs through November 30. Check the forecast in the days before your trip. If we cancel for weather, you get a full refund or credit (use the synced policy text). For water clarity, check the tide too: see high tide vs low tide at Crab Island and use the Destin East Pass tide chart.

H2: What About November? (new)

> By November the water is usually too cool for a long day of swimming, but sunny afternoons on the boat are still pleasant. A private sunset cruise or a shorter harbor trip is a good fit. For other ideas, see things to do in Destin besides Crab Island.
